

Nature and a woman's work com bined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in he study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and effica-Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills. Mrs. Bertha Muff. of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering

Sudden Taking-Off of German Ambas sador Causes Sorrow on Both Sides of the Atlantic.

Heidelberg, Germany, Aug. 25.— Baron Speck Von Sternberg, the German ambassador to the United States. died in the Hotel Victoria, in this city, about midnight Sunday night. The baroness, who was Miss Lillian May Langham, of Louisville, Ky., was with her husband at the end.

The baron and the baroness came here from Hamburg the end of last month to consult with Prof. Vincenz Czerny, a skin specialist, concerning a malady from which the ambassador had been suffering for some time After a prolonged examination of the deceased part of the left side of Baron Von Sternburg's head Prof. Czerny affirmed that the trouble was not cancer, but a lupus, and that he could cure it Both the ambassador and his wife were inniensely cheered at this opinion.

The immediate cause of Baron Von Sternburg's death was inflammation of the lungs.

The ailment that resulted in the death of Baron Von Sternburg has been stubborn and of long standing. It has been described as a lupus grow ing out of an injury received from an attack that occurred while the baron was in the service of his government in India. He made a brave fight against the spread of the malady from the start and his plucky effort to prevent the disease from spoiling his diplomatic career has won the keen sympathy of Washington people.

Baron Von Sternburg is described as having felt that his long agony was nearly over and that soon he would be a well man again. His wife also shared that hope.

It had been arranged that Baron Von Sternburg should go to Berlin the middle of September to be received in audience by Emperor William previous to his return to Washington. It was hought desirable that the ambarsador be at his post during the concluding weeks of the presidential campaign. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral of the ambassador The baron's father, who is 80 years old, lives on the family estate near Dresden, and it is possible the burial will take place there.

At a dinner that the women teachers in New York gave, a male speaker told them that the chief difficulty in their campaign for equal pay came from the men and he thought these gentlemen should be ashamed of themselves and should either as a matter of right grade their par down to that received by the women or else grade the women's pay up to theirs.

Electric trucks have been introduced by the company which controls nearly all the docks of the Brooklyn water front with great success. Formerly trucks run on three wheels were used, and these were drawn by horses. The matter of transportation by this means was always necessarily slow, and the action of the feet of the animals tramping constantly over the wood covering of the piers made the i em of repairs a very heavy one. The new trucks carry three times as much as the horse-drawn ones, besides reducing the QUITE SAFE WITH HER.
